Help make sportswomen visible

What's the problem?

When trying to find some amazing sportswomen on the internet to inspire the next generation, we couldn't.

We searched all of these questions. And more. And every time the internet told us the answer was a man. Even though the facts say it's actually a woman.

This is how we Correct The Internet.

The only way to correct this problem is by sending feedback when people find something incorrect using the search engines' 'send feedback' function.

We've collected the search results that incorrectly put a male athlete ahead of a statistically superior sportswoman, and have built a simple tool so people can help us correct them: www.correcttheinternet.com

We need as many people as possible to send feedback on these incorrect searches. The more who do it, the sooner it'll get fixed.

We need your help to spread the word.

We're asking that you help us spread the word via your social channels, and anywhere else you think might be able to help.

To make it easy, we've created a pack of social posts for you to post on any platform you use.

You can find it here.

When to post? 21st of January onwards.

What to post? There's a 'Posting Guide' in the folder which will take you through this.
